BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Edmund Flagg was born November 24, 1815, in Wicasset, Maine. He graduated from Bowdoin College in 1835 and then moved to Louisville, Kentucky. In Louisville, Flagg taught school and became a contributor to the Louisville Journal. He came to St. Louis in 1836 and studied law under Hamilton R. Gamble. After completing The Far West (1838), a journal of his wanderings through Illinois and Missouri, he worked briefly for a Louisville newspaper. Flagg practiced law in Vicksburg, Mississippi, with noted orator S.S. Prentiss and then served as editor of the Marietta (Ohio) Gazette. In 1845, he returned to St. Louis to edit the St. Louis Evening Gazette, leaving that paper after a short while to become a court reporter for St. Louis County. He contributed stories to the Missouri Republican, and published several novels and plays during his stay in St. Louis. In 1848, Flagg was appointed as a clerk to serve under U.S. Minister to Berlin Edward A. Hannegan. Two years later, Flagg was appointed U.S. consul to Venice by President John Tyler. He returned to St. Louis to become editor of the St. Louis Times in 1853. He was appointed superintendent of statistics for the Department of State in 1856, at which time he wrote his "Report on the Commercial Relations of the United States with All Foreign Nations." He served in this capacity until 1861 when he was appointed to serve as head of the copyright library for the U.S. Patent Office. Flagg retired from public service in 1870 and moved to his farm near Falls Church, Virginia. He continued to practice law. Edmund Flagg died in Virginia in 1890.

In his lifetime, Flagg's literary work became well known. He was published by major printing houses including Charles Scribner (New York). Flagg's works include Carrero or The Prime Minister of Spain, Francois of Vallois, Edmond Dantes, The Howard Queen, Venice: The City of the Sea, Monte-Cristo's Daughter, The Wife of Monte Cristo, and DeMolai: The Last of the Military Grand Masters. He also wrote a number of plays that were performed on stage in St. Louis, Louisville, Cincinnati, and New Orleans.
